About: Nancy Kraig has been working, studying and creating in the art and design field since her graduation from Adrian College with a Bachelor of Arts degree in Interior Design. She worked for the Sherwin-Williams Company for 12 years, first as a color and design consultant in the Stores Division before being promoted to color marketing manager for the Consumer Brands Division. She then decided to change her career path from color and design marketing to education and returned to Baldwin Wallace University to earn an Ohio Art Education Licensure for K-12 students.

Kraig began working in art education and taught for many years in various settings, including traditional classrooms, substitute teaching, after-school enrichment programs and community art centers. In 2012, she started working as an adjunct at Tri-C in the Interior Design Department, became the part-time program manager, and is now a full-time assistant professor.
